College Men Have Party At Crandalls

Dr. Miller Tells Students Of Their Professional Abilities.

Saturday evening, February 1, the second year Junior College fellows enjoyed a very delightful party at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Crandall. Between twenty-five and thirty boys were there. Delightful games and a bountiful supply of cake and ice cream held the interest of the fellows most of the time.

However, the greatest surprise came when Dr. Miller was ushered into the room. He gave a delightful talk on his profession of psychoanalysis. Then he went around the room pointing out the professions that each boy should best be fitted for. He was given a hearty applause for his generosity and thoughtfulness in staying overtime to be present at the party. Dr. Miller stayed throughout the evening, listening to the many songs that were sung. Everybody was happy and everyone there, including Dr. Crandall, Mrs. Crandall, and Dr. Miller, joined in heartily to sing the strains.

The party broke up at about eleven, and thanks were given to the Crandalls for their wonderful hospitality and the enjoyable evening.

"First The Blade" Has Prize Contests

Claremont, February 6.—Prize contests in poetry for "First The Blade," the intercollegiate anthology of verse, are arousing widespread interest among the writers and lovers of poetry in the colleges and junior colleges of California. Student editors of the anthology to be published by Scripps College in May are today sending out the second announcement of the poetry contest which closes on February 22nd.

Prizes totaling $50 are being offered by Mr. Crombie Allen, publisher of the Ontario Report, for the best poem or group of poems on any topic submitted. Additional prizes totaling $25 are provided by the Redlands Round Table for the best poem written on a California subject and for the best example of verse written in the ballad style.

The first two volumes of this anthology received nation wide comment in literary reviews. Quotations from the poems were made in the "Literary Digest" and favorable comment appeared on many editorial pages. The third volume, to be published on May first, promises to be the most interesting collection of poetry by younger writers ever published in California.

Contributions and correspondence should be addressed to The Secretary of the Faculty, Scripps College, Claremont.

Why, Captain!

Last Friday noon Captain Deuel went home to Heron Hall before going to lunch at the Cafeteria, and upon opening the front door he was met with the sweet essence of fried chicken, sweet potatoes and all those aromas so dear to his never failing appetite. The dinner table was decked out in holiday array, and when Mrs. Deuel appeared he was still dumb-founded.

Now it seems that the one unpleasant duty in the Captain's life is the semi-weekly disposal of the garbage, and so when Mrs. Deuel timidly asked, "Why Joe, don't you know what day this is," he answered with a sudden burst of intelligence, "Of course, dear, it is garbage day."

Now as that day was Mr. and Mrs. Deuel's wedding anniversary, the Captain will always regret that he forgot to remember.

Freshman English Proves Exciting

Wednesday afternoon after school, about twenty fortunate members of Miss Carse's freshman English class piled into cars, and made a dash for the sands of Morro where they enjoyed a big feed and an even bigger time.

The only thing that spoiled their evening was the fact that their chaperones, Miss Carse and Mr. Thompson, insisted on bringing them back by eight o'clock P. M. They would have much preferred to remain until eight in the morning.

Another Delightful Party At Prexy's

First year Junior College men anticipate the delightful time tomorrow evening when they are to be the invited guests of Doctor and Mrs. Crandall at the President's home on the hill.

Music and games in keeping with the season will be on the evening's program of entertainment. Refreshments will be served. The collegians are eager for the hour of seven-thirty to arrive for that is the hour at which they are to assemble.

Members of the second year Junior College group who were unable to attend the party recently given to them by Doctor and Mrs. Crandall are being invited to this party, making a total invitation list of forty college men.

This is the second affair of a series in the course of which every student of The California Polytechnic will be entertained in the President's home.

Mr. W. B. Byrkit Takes Mr. Rider's Place

The vacancy due to Mr. Rider's illness has been recently filled by Mr. W. B. Byrkit. Mr. Byrkit arrived last week from Los Angeles. He is a graduate from the University of Southern California. He took a post-graduate course in California Institute of Technology at Pasadena. After finishing his course there, he spent a number of years in the Los Angeles Electrical School, gaining vocational knowledge.

We are glad to welcome Mr. Byrkit to Poly, and hope that he will like us.

"Mel" and His Family Leave For The North

Faculty and students of The California Polytechnic are sorry that "Mel" and Mrs. Rider and Jackie are going away from San Luis Obispo for the rest of the year, but they are glad that "Mel" is recovering so rapidly from his operation, and they all hope that the physicians in San Francisco Bay region can find as speedy a cure for his other ailments, and they expect to see him back at Poly well and strong next September.

The Riders leave San Luis tomorrow. They will live in an apartment in Oakland near Lake Merritt.

Little Bruce Alan Bell came Sunday night, February 9, 1930, and is now enjoying life with his mother in a hospital in Bakersfield. According to the happy father who came back to Poly yesterday morning: "The baby's fine, the mother's fine, I'm fine, everybody's fine."

Bruce's big brother, who used to be the baby, is now recovering from his recent operation, and is spending some time with his grandmother in Santa Barbara.

Saskatchewan is the greatest wheat province in the world. Her 1928 crops amounted to 3,000,000,000 bushels, or 88,000,000 more than 1927.

For every tree planted in the United States, four are cut down. For every four trees cut down in Europe, 12 are planted.

Mechanics Enjoy Pictures And Trip

Cambria Quicksilver Mine Furnishes Plenty of Adventure.

One of the most enjoyable and instructive meetings that the mechanics ever had was held Tuesday evening, January 28, 1930. Plans for the trip to the quicksilver mine at Cambria were made.

After the business meeting, four reels of moving pictures were shown. The title of the picture was, "Steel and Its Alloys."

All of the members present agreed that the picture was very interesting and enjoyable. According to an agreement of the Club, all students and teachers are cordially invited to attend any of the moving pictures at the Mechanics meetings.

For the benefit of these new students entering school, all are eligible to membership who are at least Juniors in standing. Any new student wishing to join has only to ask any Mechanics to get full information.

The trip to Cambria proved a great success, some fifty-six mechanics making the trip. The mill was the first to undergo inspection. The various steps in extracting mercury from the ore were thoroughly explained by two or three of the employees. Throughout the tour, the superintendent and all of the workers were very amiable and seemed to enjoy explaining the working parts of the mill and the mine.

The mine afforded something entirely new to most of the fellows. Groups of from five to nine boys were taken down at a time. In spite of the elevator, temperature, and ladders, all said that they would not have missed the opportunity of going through the mine for anything. Some even wanted to go back through and look for the Chinaman and Baker.

Another enjoyable meeting of the Mechanics was held Wednesday night, February 12, 1930, at which a social event for the near future was discussed. The picture shown at that meeting concerned "The Story of Transportation."

Special Assembly

The request through the Student Affairs Committee for a special assembly to consider a change in the form of student body government was received at the office sometime ago.

Several dates have previously been set for this assembly, but due to the opportunity of using visitors for addresses, the open meeting has been postponed.

The Glee Club, which was to give our student body at the next assembly the program it is giving at the Santa Maria High School and Junior College this Friday night, has been asked to postpone its appearance. The assembly for next Wednesday, February 19th, has been set aside for the open forum to consider the suggestions from the student body regarding desired changes in their organization.

Military News

Recent orders from the headquarters of the 9th Corp Area contain information to the effect that this school and others operating under Sec. 55 C, National Defence Act, will not receive the issue of ball ammunition, cal. 30, to carry on target practice work. This is to be regretted in view of the fact that we have an excellent range and so many of the students have a desire to fire the rifles with which they get acquainted while drilling.

Capt. Deuel states that this school could get ammunition but it would have to be purchased instead of issued by the government as in the past.

Letters have been written to the Corp Area headquarters and to the Director of Civilian Marksmanship in hopes of finding a way to secure this ammunition, but orders are orders, and this cannot be done.

Ladies Club Holds

Pleasing Affair

Friday afternoon, February 11, in the social rooms of Junior College Hall, Mesdames Dunning, McFarland, Ayer, and Meacham entertained the ladies of the Faculty Ladies Club at a pleasant afternoon party.

After interesting game features, delicious refreshments were served.

Prominent Alumnus Appreciates Progress

Those who remember George Wilson of his Class of '07 will be interested to know that he is vice-president of the International Correspondence Schools, Scranton, Pa., and that he is still much interested in Polytechnic as the following letter recently received by Doctor Crandall indicates.

The letter follows in part:

"My wife and I received much pleasure from the nice Christmas card and letter from you and Mrs. Crandall. It certainly made me happy to know that the California Polytechnic was making such rapid progress. I did not realize you would be able to build so many new buildings."

"I sincerely hope your enrollment will continue to grow and that you will have plenty of money to operate on. Last night I was reading in the papers about the bankrupt condition of the Chicago Public Schools. I hope you will never have any such misfortune."

"I passed up the Christmas cards this year not that I wanted to, but I lost my brother just before Christmas and made a quick trip to the Tehachapi Mountains near Bakersfield, California, to spend Christmas with my mother and father. My brother was two years younger than I, and was supposedly in good health. He passed away suddenly with heart failure. He was manager of stores for the Shell Oil Company in Southern California."

"I am very sorry to hear that Miss Chase has been ill and hope she has recovered now."

"Kindly remember me to the good friends at California Polytechnic. If it is at any time possible, I will certainly make a trip west to attend another Homecoming."

Ink Slingers Take To Wheels and Sand

A joyful bunch of Press Club bums plus their guests and chaperones, Miss Carse and Mr. Thompson, spent a delightful entertaining evening skating at Morro and picnicking and playing games on the beach. Twenty-three boys and girls were present, and not a one of them was sorry he went.

The skating hall at Morro was the scene of much merry-making and whoope. The fellows and young ladies all got together and played games while skating. Some of them hit the floor more than once, but everybody was happy and able to take hard knocks.

After skating for considerably more than an hour, it was suggested that the gang leave for the beach and cats. Of course, no one wanted to eat! Oh no! Three dogs and four tom cats were killed in the stampede.

Upon arriving, the tribe found out to their dismay that they would have to provide an even greater appetite, but when the time came around for the food, everyone was on his toes. And oh boy! What a feed! There was cake, apples, hot dawgs, rolls, coffee and many other delectables.

When the time came to leave, most members of the crowd were loathe to go, and it required plenty of horn honking to change their minds.

Notice to Exchanges

Exchange mail has been coming to us with a great variety of incorrect addresses. We do not wish our correspondents to feel that they are being criticized, but realizing that our name has been confused in the past, we would inform our friends that the official name of this institution is "The California Polytechnic."

This name includes both our high school and Junior College divisions.

Senior Class Makes Choice of Rings and Announcements Wed.

The ring committee of the senior class met with Miss Chase and Mr. Wise who is an agent for the Graham Co. Wednesday noon in Miss Chase's office. The committee, after a great deal of deliberating, chose two sample rings and two sample announcements from the large collection set before them. These samples were voted on by the class after school at four o'clock Wednesday. The students also signed up for their cards.

Dr. Crandall gave a report on State diplomas. Some will get the State diplomas and some will get the sheep-skin diplomas.

Kersey Talks On Today's Check-Up

Right Attitude, Job, Use of Time, Friends, Knowing How Important.

"I want to compliment you on the things that you are doing here," said State Superintendent Kersey from Sacramento, at the assembly held in Crandall's Gymnasium Monday, Feb. 10.

Mr. Kersey went on to say that this institution should do certain things for the students besides giving them an education. In order to check up and find out whether or not we are getting what we should, each student should ask himself if he is right about certain points of character.

The first thing is to be sure to have the right attitude toward work, education, and law. Many people try to avoid work. They think that they receive an education in order to be able to work less, but a real education should help us to do more work. They also think that as long as they're not caught, they can break as many laws as they want to. But this is not the right attitude to take.

Second, each student should pick out the right job. It is essential that one decide on his line of work before his eighteenth birthday.

Third, he should make the right use of his spare time. Nearly always, what a person does in his own spare time shows how far he will get up the ladder of success. The man who hires more graduates than any other man in California always decides whether or not to give the applicant a job after learning what he does in his spare time.

Fourth, he should be sure he's right about his choice of friends. When choosing friends, he should be careful, and be sure. Between the ages of sixteen and nineteen, we make the friends who count the most. They stick the longest, and are the most influential. An important thing to remember is that in order to have friends one has to be a friend. A person without friends is lost.

Fifth, he should keep his mind open. We are never through with learning just because we have graduated. There are always new things to learn. What counts today is knowing how and being able to do things. Three important words are, "The Know How."

Mr. Kersey's talk was preceded by a program given by the school band, led by Mr. Merritt B. Smith.

Poly Phase Trio Tell About Trip to Oakland

The Poly Phase Club was favored with interesting talks January 31 by the students, Von Protz, Linsfield and Richier. They spoke about the manufacture of light bulbs and the visit through the Oakland Fire alarm control building. Letters of introduction from Dr. Wilder procured passes for the boys.

Lamps are made in sizes from five to five-thousand watts power. The filaments consist of a very fine tungsten wire wound around an iron core, and the iron core removed by acid.

The glass rod which supports the filament is made in two parts which, when finished, are heated and meshed together. The bottom of the bulbs are fastened to the base or socket connection by a paste which is heated to form a solid. This type of construction work is done by women.

Air is exhausted from the bulbs and nitrogen is put in. The nitrogen is taken out and new nitrogen put in successively eight times. The last time argon gas is put in.

A globe from every lot is placed on a current transformer in a test room and its life ascertained. The globe is examined through a telescope to get its candlepower. Frosting of the globes, both inside and out, is accomplished by the use of acid.

These three adventurous boys also visited the fire station and went over the fire alarm equipment.

Batteries are used in alarms, but A. C. and D. C. are brought in from the city supply. The alarm is sounded, a light is turned on, and a tape is marked which gives the station plenty of check on alarms.

Poly Phase students who have opportunity to visit such industrial plants are urged to do so. By obtaining a letter of introduction from Dr. Wilder, the Poly student is supplied with a guide by the company and the rest is easy.

WHAT OF THE BASKETBALL SEASON?

If the old saying "Success Breeds Success" works out with the Mustangs since the recent win over the Ramblers, a better finish is heralded for the rest of the season for our basketball team. Previous games have shown that our basketball team has not done what it could do. The players were not playing under a free and satisfactory mental state. They played just as a matter of convention. This can be explained by the fact that there was nothing to spur them into playing with their whole being set to play with that indomitable spirit that characterizes winning teams.

In order that a team can reach this ultimatum, they have to overcome their own inferiority complex and also the superiority complex of the opposing team. As in the case of the Ramblers versus the Mustangs, great odds had to be overcome in order that the score should end in Poly's favor. The Ramblers had been undefeated. This fact alone was enough to give the Ramblers enough confidence to think the game was in the bag. Moreover, that attitude was sufficient to fight to the finish with a conquering spirit that had been deeply imbedded through successive wins. On the other hand, the Mustangs had been defeated and had to fight against that inner feeling of being inferior. Naturally, the Mustangs went into the game to win, but the thing that made them tight was that Poly was really interested in the outcome. That feeling of "die hard," prompted by the interest of those who lived in the game with the team yelling and backing up the team in every play gave that triumphant feeling that they were really fighting for something after all, and not just for their own interest, but for the whole student body. It made them feel proud and that they were doing something worthy of a school's backing. Whether in winning or losing that fatal feeling of "We've got to win for Poly" puts the pep and fight in the game that makes the student body feel proud to have such a team fighting for the interest of all.

Our boys are deserving a handshake of honest sincerity for the way they played that game. The interest were common to both the team and student body. The team functions under the spirit unplayed by the student body.

In this way a real compact fighting spirit can be developed, so turn out to the games, fellows, and generate a spirit that will produce a team with a winning spirit.

AGREED, MR. KERSEY!

Mr. Vierling Kersey, State Superintendent of Schools and Director of Education, in his talk to the students of Polytechnic brought out five important ideals to follow in order to be recognized by the cultural world as the type of man that the world looks upon with approval.

His first subject was to "Have the right attitude toward work." It is wholly necessary to apply oneself to his work whether it be studies or other kinds, and to feel the need of education.

The second idea was to find the "Right job in life," the kind that will give pleasure and to work toward a goal.

The third necessity for success was, "What to do in your spare time." Do you follow some hobby and keep yourself busy or is the time wasted in idleness? Idleness breeds discontent.

The fourth idea presented was "Be sure you are right about your friends." Are they the kind that point to the best things of life, or to the frivolous and small things?

The last idea of this group of five ideals presented by Mr. Kersey in his vigorous and dynamic manner which indicates a success, is "Keep the mind open," so that you will know the "Know how" of a thing if opportunity gives the chance.

There are five necessary ideals to live up to in order to be progressive.

Creamery Cheeses

Harry Hopkins is back after a week of absence. He reports that he had been sick with the "flu." Most of us know that Harry has "heart" trouble, the kind with a sure cure. We sympathize with the dear boy and yet we can't pity him, cause you see we've seen his sweet lady.

Six girls from Paso Robles "beauties" all dropped in to see Lloyd Day and Al Wolf the other night, and before long Murph White and Arlo Aubrey were acquainted and gave the girls a treat by joining the crowd. Oh! Boy! Can Murph smile? And how! He is seen with a smile that grew so big that his face was crowded off the front of his head and stood in wrinkles around ears and neck. After the evening's formalities, plans were immediately made for a trip, to a dance in Paso Robles.

Sharps and Flats

The Orpheus Club, an organization of all instrumental musicians of this school, held a meeting last week and elected two new officers to take the place of vacancies.

Richard Dale was elected president and represents the club on the S. A. C., and Gene Patterson was elected secretary-treasurer. William Judson is our vice president-advertising manager. Plans were made for giving a dance soon, and for taking a trip together some place.

Earl Pugh, a solo clarinetist, has left school in order to attend U. S. C. Earl was an old member of the band and was always faithful and a hard worker. We will miss him.

Bill Whigglesworth is a recent addition to the band. He plays the trumpet.

The drum is probably the oldest musical instrument we have. It has been used for ages with only slight changes. The first drum was a skin stretched across the stump of a hollow tree and was probably used to signal with. Later drums were made so that they could be carried around. The cannibals' only instrument was the drum.

Now we have all sorts of drums and they play an important part in our music. There are snare drums, field drums, kettle drums, and big bass drums.

"Caf" Skits

A vote of thanks to Ma Joyner for the treat Wednesday night, February 5! I'm referring to the hamburger rolls. Pretty good, weren't they, gang? Leave it to ma, she knows.

It would be very much appreciated if you fellows would refrain from putting wise cracks on the notices that are put up in the Cafeteria. Play fair and give the other fellows a break. Please cooperate with us.

WARNING "Wherever there are fools there will always be antics." Some of you fellows continually play around. Cut it out, at least when in the Cafeteria.

Galley Slaves

Joe Wilkins spent the week-end at Paso Robles while Ed Smith spent the week-end at Santa Maria.

Junior Danenberg spent the week-end in Los Angeles.

"Poor" was seen touring the country in a Cord. (?)

Why did Anderson go to Santa Maria Saturday?

The following job work has been turned out since January 28: 400 vocational guidance cards, four forms, 200 special privilege blanks, 400 towel receipt cards, 500 time cards for Mr. Dunning, 4,000 tardy blanks and 6,000 absent blanks for Captain Deuel, 5,000 transfer slips, 500 student body cards for Miss Jordan, 200 Y. M. C. A. stickers for Dr. Crandall, 500 job cards for aero shop, 50 post cards for Mr. Funk, 300 programs for Dr. Crandall, 2,500 "Character Builder" covers printed on both sides for Dr. Crandall.

Work on the journal is beginning now, and the Galley Slaves expect to be busier than ever for the next month or two.

Did the Galley Slaves skate well at Mono at the Press Club skate Monday night? And how!

Junior Class Notes

Well, fellows, have you all paid your four bits for the class pictures? Remember that picture must be paid for or, well there just won't be a picture, that's all, and surely you can spare up fifty cents somewhere. Come on, fellows, we want to be represented in the Journal with our class picture, don't we?

Barnyard Gossip

The new horses have arrived and are a great addition to our equine possessions. The stallion is a beautiful iron gray high strung animal and is already a great favorite among the boys. He had a funny society name that is too long to publish, and too much trouble to say, so we call him "Archie."

The mares are four in number and are roans. We are not so well acquainted with them as we are with Archie.

The planting of sixteen grain projects of eight acres each has been completed by Mr. Selp and the boys interested in these projects. These boys hope to realize large profits from this undertaking, both in experience and in a financial sense.

Not only have we seven forty-pound cows this month, but we have the highest producing cow in San Luis Obispo County. This cow can be seen any evening at the new dairy barn. Her herd number is one hundred and eighty-nine, and her name is "Shaggy." We are proud of Shaggy and show her every courtesy a cow that produces seventy-one and three-tenths pounds of butter fat in twenty-eight days should be shown.

At the last meeting of the Junior Farm Center, it was announced that our annual barn dance would be held on Friday, April 11. The barn will be bigger and better than ever this year, and is something to look forward to.

Mr. Meughan's dairy class took a trip to the Golden Gate Creamery in town last week. It was enjoyed by all of the boys.

Deuel Dorm Events

Deuel Dorm held a meeting February 6. Several new bills were passed. New officers installed were Jack Carter, secretary-treasurer, and Pete Armandarac, sergeant-at-arms.

We would like to know who is phoning "Chubby" Cornelison at 6:30 Sunday mornings.

"Zook" is getting hotter on his saxophone. So hot, that everybody's moving.

Don Carroll, Watson Paul and Junior Danenberg went to Hollywood over the week-end; evidently they do not think much of the long dress "fad" now going strong on the boulevards of Hollywood.

Paul Shumway went to Pasadena with his folks over the week-end. He came back driving a new Ford. There must be a reason!

Since Christmas time ten new boys have entered Deuel Dorm.

In the past week Deuel Dorm has been exceptionally clean. Let's cooperate with the student janitors and keep it that way.

Flashovers & Short Circuits

The thermo electric is one of the most interesting recent additions to things electrical. It is a glass tube containing a gas and a circuit arranged so that when a ray of light is directed through a little window into the tube, the current flowing in the circuit is varied in intensity according to the amount of light received.

These cells are adapted to a wide range of usefulness and are being tried in the industries in many peculiar ways. Since they respond to changes in the amount of light received, they may be operated by directing a beam from a flashlight and may be used for opening garage doors or gates at night by simply directing the rays from the head lights of an auto. Imagine driving into your garage without the necessity of getting out to open doors.

The band may be used to intercept a ray of light and in this way operate the cell and any mechanism to which it is attached. The wonders of the "mechanical man" so much written about in the popular magazines last year, were due to this cell.

In talking pictures, the cell plays an important part and some of our electrical students who are now engaged in studying this phase of industry will doubtless write us a description in the near future.

At present these tubes are rather expensive and it will probably be some time before we shall have one for our laboratories. However, it is hoped that the price will be lowered as quantity production grows and we may in time afford one or more.

All electrical students are now scheduled to appear in the Electrical Engineering Building during the last period of the week. Here the time is divided between the counselors and to the Poly Phase Club. The club makes use of its time in holding short business sessions, practice in effective public speaking, reviewing technical subjects and viewing an occasional film. The scheme seems to work out to much advantage to both faculty and students.

POLY CRACKERS

Dear Poly Crackers:

Can you explain the strange actions of Hayes and Whaley Sunday nite in the show? It seemed that they and the usherettes disagreed on the matter of seats. How did this happen?

Yours for knowledge,
I. M. Curious.

Dear I. M. Curious:

It seems that the dear boys made a mistake and gave the usherettes time to examine the little green tags. Consequently they were asked to step up to Poly heaven for the rest of the performance as the tickets were not for that date.

Poly Crackers.

Dear Poly Crackers:

I would like to know if all those "Christmas vacation elopements" are true? If not, why all the smoke and no fire?

Yours,
Puzzled.

Dear Puzzled:

Don't let it worry you. If you really want to know, ask the parties concerned. Everyone enjoys telling his or her own secrets.

Yours,
Poly Crackers.

Dear Poly Crackers:

I hear that the Day brothers are off of the weaker sex for life. Is this true, and if so why?

Yours inquisitively,
Bunnie.

Dear Bunnie:

Yes, it is true. But the name of the person who is responsible for this dire effect has not as yet been revealed. If information is disclosed concerning this state of affairs before next issue of the Polygram, you may be sure I'll tell you first.

Yours,
Poly Crackers.

Dear Poly Crackers:

We want to know if Charles Cornelison's absence Tuesday, Feb. 4, had anything to do with the early morning ring from the girl friend the Sunday before, the one which awakened the entire dormitory?

Yours respectfully,
The Faculty.

Dear Faculty:

Mr. Cunningham is without doubt the only one who knows the whereabouts of this young man at any time. Even Charles was disgusted with the early morning caller though, and we are sure that she was properly called down for arousing him before the bugle had a chance.

Yours for information,
Poly Crackers.

Heron Hall

Well, fellows, have you paid your dues yet? The dues have to be paid up before we can be represented in the Journal with a picture, so let's cooperate and bring in the dues.

The Junior College men will soon be leaving Heron Hall, as the new Junior College dormitory is nearing completion.

Harold Hale is back to school again. It seems as though they just can't stay away. Everybody's glad to see him back again.

The pool table in the day room has just been repaired, due to the efforts of Captain Deuel. Let's see if we can't keep it in good condition for awhile. Sit on the chairs and not on the table.

State Superintendent Kersey came around through Heron Hall Monday night, and found everything in good shape.

Della: What's wrong with your foot?

General Briggs: Got a corn.

Della: Done anything for it?

G. B.: After the way it's been hurting me? I should say not.

A bulletin board outside a church announced Sunday's sermon, "Do you know what Hell is?" Underneath was printed in small letters, "Come and hear our new organist." Boston Transcript.

irate Customer: I left word three days ago to have my front door bell fixed and it hasn't been done yet.
Proprietor: Why, I sent someone out—Jones, didn't you fix that bell at 104 Drum street?
Electrician: I went out there, but I rang the bell five times and no one answered, so I figured there was no one at home.

WANT ADS

Lost—Fountain pen, by a man half full of ink.

Found—A watch by a man with a cracked face.

Wanted—A man to milk and drive a Ford car.

Wanted—A man to take care of a horse that speaks German.

For sale—A folding bed, by a lady that doubles up and looks like a piano.

First Chauffeur: Have you ever been pinched for going too fast?
Second Chauffeur: No, but I've been slapped.

He: 'Would you still love him if he didn't have a car?'
She: Oh, yes, if he promised to get one right away.

Vaudeville Singer: And for Bonnie Annie Laurie—I'd lay me down and die.

Listener (rising): Is Miss Laurie in the audience?

A gardener of Addestone, England, who has just celebrated his golden wedding attributes his health and old age to constant hard work.

"Tis a hard world," said the day laborer as he brought down his pick.

"Seventy miles an hour," cried Mr. Thompson as he stepped on the gas.

"Are you brave?"
"Yes, I'm full of grit," said Miss Cursey, as she swallowed another cloud of dust.

Millsap: One man in New York dies every minute.

Condray: Yea, I'd like to see him.

Retired Butcher: See them books bound in calfskin.

Friend: Yes.

R. B. (proudly): Well, I killed them calves myself.

Flapper: I would like to see the captain of this ship.

Rookie: He's forward, Miss.

Flapper: I don't care. This is a pleasure trip.

John Costello: Say, guy, do I take the train from San Bernardino to Los Angeles?

Conductor: My dear boy, the engine does that; you just get on.

Flapper: And next week I'm off to Paris to get my clothes.

Grandmother: Yes, yes, I wondered where you'd left them.

Today's fairy tale: Thanks for the treat, McGregor.

Bass Drummer's Wife: There's not a thing in the house to eat. I should think you could drum up a little business.

Mrs. Selph: What's the matter, dear?

Mr. Selph: I can't get this confounded self-starter to work. I think there must be a short circuit somewhere.

Mrs. Selph: How annoying! Can't you lengthen it?—Laporte (Ind.) Herald-Argus.

HAFF-O-GRAMS

The biggest hearted man in the world is the Scotchman that died and left a million dollars to the mother of the Unknown Soldier.

"Wanta go swimming?"
"I don't swim."
"Wanta go bathin'?"
"I don't—aw—shut up!"

Mickey: Say, Senior, wot kinda cigarets do you smoke?

Scotch: Me, why I smoke Robinson Crusoes.

Mickey: What kinda cigarets are those?

Scotch: "Castaways—Dumbell—castaways!"

Raymond was a proud possessor of a black and white mongrel which was a nuisance to the rest of the household. But Raymond could not be persuaded to part with it. At last his father made him an offer.

"My boy," he said, "I'll give you ten shillings if you'll get rid of that dog."

The following morning Raymond claimed the half sovereign.

"That's excellent," said the boy's father, "here you are. How did you do it?" Raymond smiled as he pocketed the money. "I swapped him with Bobbie Brown for two black pups," Pearson's Weekly.

Lovesick Nephew: Uncle. What's the best way of finding out what she thinks of you?

Bachelor Uncle: Marry her, my boy.

When I was your age I thought nothing of a ten mile walk.

Well, I don't think much of it either.

Delia: He's so romantic. He never speaks to me without beginning "fair lady."

Ciro: Romantic my eye, that bird used to be a street-car conductor.

"Now, Johnny," said the teacher, "suppose you wanted to build a $1,000 house and had only $700. What would you do?"

"I s'pose I'd have to marry a girl worth $300," answered the young financier.

"Now, Willie," said the generous father as he and his little son were gazing into a tailor shop window. "I am going to buy you a new pair of trousers, and you shall choose them yourself. Which pair do you want?"

After a moment's hesitation, Willie said, "Please, father, may I have the pair marked, 'Can't be beaten'."

She: What is the difference between a Scotchman and a canoe?

He: I don't know. What is it?

She: A canoe tips.

Mr. Cunningham: Well, I blew myself for a new radio.

Captain Deuel: What did you get, a crystal set?

Mr. Cunningham: No, a railroad set, it whistles at every station.

Believe It Or Not

By "Slim" and "Chops"

J. D. Reiff, the woman hater, couldn't convince a couple of telephone operators of being so. Dr. Miller said he couldn't find much to read in Bill Judson's head. He wondered how he got to be a second year. J. C. Norman Ballaam and Bill Williams are raising quite the soup strainers. "Poof" Wood is certainly the song advertiser around this campus. If Dick Willett takes a certain girl to the Press Club party, there won't be any room for Dick to ride. Well, Avalyn has a car. Cigo Barbara had a dream that he was a convict and, to make it realistic, had his hair cut in such manner as all good convicts do. It has happened to be sure; Jack Carter has found new love, that is in himself. Bob Rowe seem to be making a lot of trips north. It seems funny he has to go that far. It must be great to be particular.

The small boy in the family had acted so badly that some kind of punishment was now in order. "Charles," commanded his mother, "find a switch and bring it to me. I shall attend to you right now."

Shortly after, the bright young man returned.

"I can't find a switch, ma," he replied, "but here is a big rock you can throw at me."

MATURITY

"Little boy, don't you know what becomes of boys who use such bad language when they play marbles?"

"Yes, m., they grow up and play golf."

Clerk in Five and Ten: You can have anything in here for a dime.

Bob U: I'll take that little blonde behind the candy counter.

June Bug: I asked her if I could see her home.

Webb: What did she say?

June Bug: She said that she would send me a picture of it soon.

FINALLY FELT SAFE

"Gus," said Bill, as he caught up with him on his way back to the camp, "are all of the rest of the boys out of the woods yet?"

"Yes," said Gus.

"All six of them?"

"Yes."

"And they're all safe?"

"Yop, they're all safe."

"Then," said Bill, his chest swelling, "I've shot a deer."—Border Cities Star.

MOTTO FOR A DOG HOUSE

I love this little house because it offers, after dark, A pause for rest, a rest for paws; A place to moor my bark.

Girl: What did you do with your car, Bill? I never see you driving it around any more.

Boy: I know it, Betty. You see I had to turn it in as first payment on a history book.—U. of S. C. Wampus.

Umbertis: Get up, you're sitting on the joke I just finished writing.

Judson: Well, I thought I felt something funny.

Miss Knox: Barnes, what is the shape of the earth?

Barnes: Round.

Miss Knox: How do you know it is round?

Barnes: All right, it's square, then; I don't want to start any argument.

Bogert: I crossed all my chickens with parrots.

Cornellison: What was your idea?

Bogert: Well, when one of my hens lays an egg now, instead of cackling, she comes to me and says, "Jim I laid an egg—go get it and sell it to the mechanics."

Skaggs: What are you looking for, Elliot?

Shohan: My car, I painted the thing an inconspicuous color, and now I can't find it.

Mustangs Win Over Undefeated Team

Both Teams Show Much Style—Ten Minutes Extra Period Played.

On Tuesday night, February 4, the Poly Mustangs took the undefeated Ramblers down a notch, defeating them in what will probably prove to be the best game of the season to be played in the Crandall Gym.

Both teams had up their fighting spirit and they went on that floor determined to show each other a few tricks of the game. Before the starting whistle, the Ramblers seemed to be the slight favorites, but the game had not gone far before the betting was even. During the entire first half, neither team could get out of reaching distance of the other. But at the end of the first half, the Ramblers seemed to have a slight spurt of basket shooting and had the Mustangs led by one point.

In the second half, however, the Mustangs came back and showed the older fellows a few tricks and again neither team was able to outclass the other. With about ten seconds to go, the Ramblers held the lead by two points, when Simmons, star forward for the Mustangs, loomed one in tying the score 40 to 40. So it was necessary to play a five minute extra period, but during this time neither team was able to score, still leaving the score tied. This meant another extra period and in this last few minutes, the younger boys seemed to wear out the older Ramblers and were able to score eight more points while they held the Ramblers scoreless. The final score being 48 to 40.

The Mustangs were led in the scoring column by Rambo, a new fellow who has only played a few games with the Mustangs, but in those few games he has showed the entire Poly student body what he can do and in doing so has won their praise. Rambo was closely followed in the scoring column by Simmons who played forward for the Mustangs and he does it in great style.

In the preliminary game the San Luis Tigers defeated the Coy's Grocery of Santa Maria. Before this game, the Groceries had been undefeated, so two undefeated teams lost on this night, as the Ramblers were as yet undefeated before the Poly quintet took them into camp.

The High School boys showed great style in defeating the older and more experienced team from the south. This game also proved to be very close although not as fast or as good a game as that played in the main event. The final score for the preliminary game was 28 to 21.

Last Conference Games Tonight at Crandall Gym

Tonight and tomorrow night will see the finish of the Mustangs conference games for the present season.

The Mustangs will tangle with the strong Marysville quintet who have traveled four hundred miles to try and defeat the Mustangs. Will they or not?

Very little is known about the team from the north, but all that has been heard about them is much to their favor, and they are expected to show the Poly team a few tricks.

The Poly Mustangs have not been going so well in their conference games this season. But they have their hearts set on winning at least two conference games this season, and so they will go on the court tonight to defeat the Northern team.

Ideals of Sportsmanship

(Mabel R. Ellis, San Francisco, in Sierra Educational News.)

During the World Federation Conference at Geneva, one of the Herman-Jordan committees studied the subject of international sports as a means of creating international friendliness. Daniel Chase of New York, as chairman of the committee, recommended the following ideals of sportsmanship:

1. Acceptance of defeat graciously.
2. Winning without boasting.
3. Making a good fight regardless of odds.
4. Playing with good temper.
5. Teamwork.
6. Avoidance of playing to the grandstand.
7. Overcoming the desire to win at any cost.

Poly Boys Play Two Games at Cambria

On Wednesday night, the fifth of February, the Poly basketball teams defeated the Cambria High School in one game and dropped one to them.

In the first game the Lightweights defeated the Cambria B team. In this game the Poly boys completely outclassed the High School team. Taking the lead from the starting whistle, they were never threatened throughout the entire game. This was the first appearance of this lightweight team and they appeared to have made a good start. More games are being scheduled for this team and they are expected to uphold the honors of Poly by doing their best to win every game they play. The final score for this game was 19 to 14.

In the second game at Cambria, the Poly reserves fell into the defeat column by losing to the Cambria unlimited team, the final score being 21 to 16. Although the Poly team were unable to defeat the team from the Pine City, they played very good ball throughout and it was not until the last minutes that the Cambria boys managed to nose out the Poly five.

This is the second game that the Poly reserves have played this season. In the first game they were defeated by the Junior Ramblers, but they are expected to snap out of it and come through with several victories before the present season is over. The best of teams will lose games at some time during the season.

Poly Five Drops Two Games to Menlo J. C.

On Friday and Saturday nights, February 7 and 8, the Poly Mustangs fell before the terrific onslaught of the Menlo team in both games.

In the first game on Friday night the Poly quintet could not seem to get going and the Menlo Oaks just naturally walked through the Poly boys for the total score of 45 to 25 in favor of the northern team. Although the Mustangs did not seem to be able to stop the Menlo team, they did very well to hold them to such a close score as the Menlo quintet is considered the best in the conference this season.

On Saturday night the Mustangs turned the tables on the Menlo team during the first half of play. During the entire first period, the Mustangs led the northern team, but at the start of the second period, the Mustangs seemed to lose their ability to play basketball and they again fell before the Menlo quintet.

During the second half, the Menlo quintet seemed to snap out of it and took the Mustangs by surprise and the Mustangs were unable to get going again. The final score was 34 to 20. According to the scores, the Poly five seemed to improve considerably over the style of game they played on Friday night.

Rambo was high point man for both games, scoring ten points in the first game and eight points in the second game. He was closely followed in the scoring column during the second game by Hogue who scored six points.

Sportitorial

Many of the students seemed to have taken the word given, in the last issue of the Polygram by the Editor.

On the night of February 4th, when the Mustangs played the undefeated Ramblers. A majority of the students of Poly attended the game. In fact so many people attended that there was hardly standing room left, and you saw the best game you have likely every witnessed. If you can attend such games as this, why not be on hand when the Poly quintet has a conference game? Your support seemed to help the team a great deal, and if you can encourage them enough to beat the best team they will be up against this season, they will certainly do their best if you come out and give them a cheer.

Speaking of quick thinking, a man recently overlooked his wife's birthday. Tearfully she reminded him of it. "Listen, darling," he said, "I knew I forgot it, but there isn't a thing about you to remind me that you are a day older than you were a year ago."

Poly Drops Two Games On Trip to San Mateo

On Friday and Saturday, January 31 and February 1, the Poly Mustangs dropped two more basketball games.

The Mustangs played the San Mateo Junior College on these dates, and owing to the fact that the Poly quintet was not used to playing the rough and tumble type of basketball which was played at San Mateo, they were completely outclassed by the northern team which was more used to the type of game which was played.

In the first game on Friday night, the Poly five could not get organized and were unable to show much in either defense or offense, so they came out on the short end of the 14 to 31 score.

On Saturday night the Mustangs were again the victims of the San Mateo quintet. Again in the second game of the two game series, the Mustangs were unable to solve the ways of the northern team and fell before the terrific onslaught delivered by the San Mateo five, and came out on the short end of the 18 to 37 score.

Ramblers Win Over Hancock Airport Five

On Tuesday night, February 5, the Ramblers took the Hancock air school from Santa Maria into camp, while the Poly reserves were defeated by the San Luis Tigers.

In the main event the Ramblers had a hard fight in defeating the flying school. During the first half the two teams played equal ball and at the end of the first half, the score was tied 12 to 12. At the start of the second half both teams returned to the floor determined to wear the other out, but it was not until the closing few minutes of play that the Ramblers managed to wear out the visitors and defeat them by the score of 36 to 24.

In the preliminary game the San Luis Tigers defeated the Poly reserves in one of the best games to be seen on the Poly court. During the first quarter Poly showed the Tigers a few tricks and led them by a few points, but early in the second quarter, the Tigers came right back and ran up a few points on the Poly five and when the bell sounded for the end of the first half the Tigers held the lead by two points. Again in the third quarter the Poly team played good ball and again got ahead of the Tigers, but the fighting Tigers were not to be so easily defeated and they came right back and defeated the Poly reserves by the final score of 25 to 19.

SHADOWS ON THE WALL

A Mystery Story in Six Parts

BY RAY KING

At the end of the last installment, the Colonel had just come in and told us where the "Phantom" and Isabelle were. He said, "The third panel—Isabelle—'Phantom'—third panel," and with a final gasp he slumped to the floor unconscious. I grabbed a heavy andiron from its place by the fireplace and crashed the panel mentioned, not taking time to find the spring to open it, revealing a black hole. Now go on with the story.

INSTALLMENT V

I TOOK my pocket flashlight and told Roy to do the same. I then plunged through the aperture with Roy close at my heels. We went down seemingly endless passageways for what seemed to be hours, but was really a very short time. Ahead there seemed to be a lightening of the heavy blackness and soon we came into a large cavern dimly lighted by a sputtering candle. In the center of the cavern was Isabelle, bound, gagged and tied in a chair.

I told Roy to go down and continue the chase of the "Phantom" who was just a couple of minutes ahead of us, as Isabelle told us as soon as I took the cruel gag from off her pretty little mouth. Hastily untying Isabelle and assuring myself that she was unharmed, I raced down the passageway after Roy. Turning an abrupt corner, a fusillade of shots greeted me. I felt the dull searing and burning pain that told me I had been shot in the shoulder. Heedless of pain, I shifted my automatic to my left hand, which I could use nearly as well as my right, and started shooting where I had seen the flashes.

I had been hearing a roaring all this time which I finally placed—it was the ocean. Roy, who had been beside me as soon as I turned the corner, suggested that we use our flashlights. We turned on our beams of concentrated light, holding them away to one side of us so if fired upon we wouldn't be behind them, flooding that end of the passage where the "Phantom" supposedly was. The place was empty.

Once more starting in pursuit we found that we didn't have far to go. We came to the end of the passage which ended at the edge of the cliff.

Framed in the open way of the passage was the "Phantom." We both emptied our automatics at him and with a strange, weird, wild and long drawn wailing scream, he plunged over into the waves forty feet below. It was high tide. We rushed to the opening and turning on our flashes to the waves below, we saw nothing.

Nothing was ever seen or heard of from the "Phantom" again. Neither were the questions answered—why did the "Phantom" murder, or how did he always manage to elude his pursuers? Later we did find out one thing—that all of the men he had killed lived in homes which were built with secret panels, passageways, and the like. As nearly as we could surmise, he must have found or procured in some way an original plan of each house and studied the passageways and escaped that way.

We hurried back and found Isabelle waiting for us in the cavern. As soon as she saw me, her face blanched, and, with a little cry, she said, "Why, Bob, you're wounded."

"It's nothing," I said, "just a mere scratch."

She must have known that it was more than a scratch because I must have been quite pale with the loss of blood and my shirt was also soaked with blood. I tried to tell Isabelle how glad I was that she was safe, but I could only mumble. Then the whole cavern began whirling around and around, and a loud roaring filled my ears. Lights danced in front of my eyes. Then I was falling, falling, falling, deeper and deeper. Then, oblivion.

Watch for the conclusion of this mystery story in the next issue of the Polygram. If you have found it interesting enough to read another, let me know and I will try again.

Better to a little with content than much with contention.—Benj. Franklin.
